A pastor with a number of churches for nearly fifteen years, Gary is now the Coordinator for Theological Education at the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship in Atlanta. He received his M.Div. from Southeastern Baptist and a Ph.D. from Baylor University. Gary's writings include both fiction and non-fiction, but are linked by his goal of making a difference. Whether designed to help someone deal with a difficult time in ministry or challenge a non-believer with the power of the Gospel, he continues to reach out through his books in new and compelling ways. After writing the bestselling Beyond a Reasonable Doubt, Gary returns to fiction with The Ephesus Fragment, his sixth novel. Sparked by an article surrounding the possibility of the Pope naming Mary the Co-Redeemer with Jesus, the novel presents a fresh look both at Mary and at the life of Jesus. The novel captures the mood of the best of thrillers with superbly crafted characters, a twisting plot, and a powerful resolution that calls readers to look at the foundations of the Christian faith.
