

On a Cold Winters Night

On a cold winter night-or any night in the year- snuggle up and enjoy five delightful stories designed to put you in the Christmas spirit. Homemade Christmas by Leanne Burroughs The Black Friday stock market crash of 1929 turns the world on its heels. Mark Donovan loses his job and returns to the farm hed turned his back on so many years before. Maddy Stepson teaches at the local school. When the man she fell in love with as a child comes home, she not only has to compete with all he fell in love with in the big city, but stresses from the Great Depression that threaten to tear them apart. Christmas Wishes and Second Chances by Amy Blizzard Last Christmas, life was in perfect order for Dr. Elle Hennessy. But within one year, her life has been turned upside down by a broken engagement and a startling discovery. Unwilling to ruin her familys holiday cheer, Elle finds herself turning to Dr. Philip Wagner, her former fiance, during her time of need when he extends a helping hand. With Philip standing faithfully by her side, the flames of love that had grown dim are rekindled and burning brightly once again. But is Elle strong enough to believe in the power of Christmas miracles and give their relationship another chance? Connecting Flights by Judith Leigh Stormy weather delayed baggage claims on Elizabeth Rawlings return flight to Tallahassee. A double latte sounds like the perfect time killer. The crowded coffee shop necessitates sharing a table where she receives a jolt stronger than the lightning outside. Aaron Blake noticed Beth in the luggage return area. Now here she was, asking to share his table. The high school sweetheart hed never forgotten, or stopped loving. Can a chance meeting turn out to be a lifetime connection? Noahs Arch by Patty Howell Archer Webster, a psychologist accused of stalking, seeks a top-notch defense lawyer to represent him.

Referred to the firm of Adams & Adams, he finds himself having to decide whos the craziest: the woman accusing him or the attorney defending him. Burned from a previous case, Noah Adams accepts only female clientele. When Archer Webster seeks representation by her legal firm, she uses her male given name to her advantage. Or so she thinks. She soon learns the difficulty and embarrassment of straightening out a relationship begun on a lie. Can love at first sight overcome the hurdles of lies, deception, and trickery? Bonny Blue Christmas by Susan Barclay Annikas life is full and satisfying. She owns and operates her own restaurant, teaches cooking classes at the local college, and develops recipes in her few spare moments. Even though her mamma longs for a son-in-law, who has time for a man? Enter a dark-haired, blue-eyed man, whose worldly-wise taste buds expand her appreciation for ethnic food, and whose kisses leave her wanting more. How did she ever live without him? But when Joels hidden secret comes to light, Annikas hopes for the future come crashing down. Will she recover? Is it possible to trust again? And can she face this Christmas alone?
