

Dialogue Fall 2014 Issue: A journal of Mormon thought

Within the pages of the Fall 2014 issue, Michael Austin explores the literary heritage of Vardis Fisher, Staci Ford looks closely at the multicultural Latter-day Saint community in the Hong Kong China District and Roger Terry continues his two-part series about LDS usage of archaic pronouns. The issue features poetry by Mark D. Bennion, Sarah Dunster and Ronald Wilcox. You'll also find James McLachlan's fascinating review of Terry Givens' When Souls Had Wings: Pre-Mortal Existence in Western Thought. Also be sure not to miss Charles Inouye's beautiful sermon on the intersections of Mormonism and nature. Cover and inside art by Maddison Colvin.
