

The Conspiracy Files: Lord Lucan

In November 1974, the Lucan family nanny Sandra Rivett was bludgeoned to death their fashionable Belgravia townhouse. Lord Lucan was identified as the attacked by his wife, who was also assaulted, and the peer fled London in a borrowed car. The car was later found abandoned in the British coastal town of Newhaven, but Lucan was never located. Conspiracy theorists have since delighted in speculating on the fate of Lord Lucan. The most likely outcome is that he committed suicide shortly after the crime, and his body was never found; however, many people believe that the peers rich and powerful friends helped him flee the country, and he subsequently lived out the rest of his life in an overseas paradise. Recent speculation has centred on the African country of Gabon, after it was suggested that the peers children had travelled there in the 1980s. The Conspiracy Files series lifts the lid on some of the worlds most notorious mysteries, unexplained events and possible conspiracies. The narrative examines the accepted version of events, considers their veracity, and investigates the potential for conspiracy and cover-up. There are a total of eight books in the Conspiracy Files series, with multi-book bundles comprising four books offering the best value for money.
