Western. Book 10: The Shepherd of Guadalupe (1930); The Drift Fence (1933); The Hash Knife Outfit (1933. Sequel to The Drift Fence). The Shepherd of Guadalupe: The Shepherd of Guadalupe is a masterpiece of romantic, historical fiction any lover of that genre should want to read. This is perhaps the finest of the Zane Grey war novels. Cliff Forrest is his name, and he embodied what Zane Grey saw in the unfair treatment of the crippled soldier who survived the war. Forrest believes he is to die, and the only thing he wants is to make it home to New Mexico before he dies. Virginia Lundeen, the daughter of the man who hated and hindered Forrests father and who had encroached and settled on Forrest property and began a feud, sees Cliffs plight. She knows of the injustice done to his family by her father and decides to fight with Cliff to restore the property and to win his heart. This is a poignant love story of a man who only dares to dream of such a woman as Virginia because he knows he is about to die; and the passion of a woman who encourages him and tries her best in every way possible to see he does not die. The Drift Fence: Zane Grey evokes the atmosphere, hardships and possibilities of the Old West like nobody else. In The Drift Fence, Jim Taft, a stranger from Missouri, has the Herculean task of fencing off a large Arizonan ranch to prevent cattle-rustling, in the face of fierce local opposition. Theres also the lovely Molly Dunn to distract him; but how can he hope to woo the sister of his chief enemy? When the first drift fence is built across a free cattle range, anger overflows. Jim Traft, the tenderfoot in charge of building the fence, finds himself in deep trouble. It takes all of his wits to stay alive, let alone complete the fence. But with courage and tenacity Traft finishes his work and lives to see it bring new order to the range. The Hash Knife Outfit: The Hash-knife Outfit includes all classic elements of an old western adventure: gun fights, ambushes, face-offs between two rivals and kidnapping of two women. This is the story of a feud between two cattle outfits, The Diamond and The Hash Knife. The Hash Knife Outfit are outlaws and during the dispute kidnap two women. Their rescue and the showdown between the two outfits provide the excitement.
