

Veils and Vows (Reconciled and Redeemed Book 3)

Shed promised never to be like her mother. One man stands in the way of that promise.

Renee Winters has the voice and the face of an angel. Shes the worship leader at her church, runs the Brides for Christ program for young teenage girls, and is the chaste bride modeling the gowns for the bridal shop she works at. The problem? Its all a lie. As a child, Renees alcoholic mother paraded a slew of men in and out their home. Renee vowed she would never turn out like her, but one broken night, she ran from the nightmare of her home and into the arms of handsome bad-boy Ian McKnight. She tries to erase her moment of weakness with years of faithful service. Yet each time she stands before young girls, preaching about the beauty of remaining pure, she is painfully aware of her broken vows. Then Ian returns a wounded soldier, a recovering alcoholic, and no stranger to broken vows. Ian knows the truth, and Renee avoids him, unsure if she can trust him or herself. When the bridal shop hires him to create a website, she realizes she must face the truth. With his camera pointed in her direction, he tries to capture the real Renee, the one behind the veil of lies. Will Ian tempt Renee to break her promises again, or will he help her understand the true nature of her vows?
