

Reluctant Enemies

Vivian Vaughan creates a western romance true to the enchanting landscape of New Mexico and as fired with sexual tension as a starry western sky. RT BOOK REVIEWS New Mexico Territory, 1879. Will Radnor has never stopped looking for Charles Martin Kane, the man who murdered his father back in Philadelphia. Following the first good lead he's had in years, Will accepts a position with a law firm in Santa Fe. In Chimayo, a golden-haired cowgirl, dressed like Billy the Kid and smelling of horse sweat climbs into the stagecoach and changes his life forever. Then he learns her name. Priscilla McCain has realized her dream to become the best-dressed cowgirl in New Mexico Territory, following in the boot steps of her beloved father, Charlie McCain. In Chimayo she climbs into the stage and trips over the flimsy black boots of a greenhorn lawyer. He is tall, though, and handsome. Silk shirts and perfume spring to mind. Then she realizes what he is a greenhorn. Soon, however, even wild horses can't keep them apart. Will passes every greenhorn test Priscilla poses and proves himself a quick learner. Before she knows it, Priscilla has donned that silk shirt, lacy chemise, and spritzes on her mother's perfume. As Will's love for Priscilla grows, he knows that the time will come when she must choose between him and her father, and either choice will be disastrous for all of them. He has never seen a family as close. But can he forego bringing Charles Martin Kane to justice, even for the woman he loves?
