

Love On the Line (The Line Series Book 1)

Violet Morgan puts the personal in personal chef, catering to clients who want the full cooking experience rather than a culinary drop-and-dash. But when her brother's police detective partner is injured in the line of duty and needs help during recovery, she makes an exception. Violet lost her father to the job seven years ago, and worries for her brother's safety every day. The last thing she wants is to get up-close with her brother's career-cop partner again. For Noah Blackwell, being a detective isn't just a lifestyle, it's a legacy. So when he's forced to take mandatory leave and deal with the trauma of amnesia keeping him from identifying his shooter, it's as if insult and injury have joined forces and now he's got to deal with an unwanted caregiver on top of it. Never mind that he and Violet shared a steamy, secret kiss last New Year's Eve. She rejects everything related to the job, and Noah's not about to be distracted from recovering his memory and getting back to what he does best. No matter how pretty Violet is. Despite their differences, Violet and Noah share a surprising bond in the kitchen that grows into something neither of them expect. But as Noah heals and their feelings for each other extend from the kitchen to the bedroom, Violet knows she must make an impossible choice. She may wear her heart on her sleeve in the kitchen, but can she put love on the line?
