

the dark side of the bbc. a disturbing true story

this is the book the british broadcasting corporation (BBC) tried to stop publication of using corrupt and dirty methods. it tells the true story of how the bbc are mostly all involved in illegal and dirty broadcasting activities, predominantly telepathic broadcasting. they can broadcast into the minds of any given person and they can also broadcast that persons thoughts, sight and emotional state directly into the minds of all people around that person. as the bbc are paid by the british public, this amazing technological breakthrough in the field of broadcasting should have been plastered all over the front pages of every newspaper across the world. but it was not. it was kept secret and developed further and further over the years until it was capable of being used as a weapon against any innocent, ordinary member of the public like myself just for a sick sense of fun. this book is my true life story of how the bbc invaded my mind in this perverted way and made me fight tooth and nail just to survive on the streets of london and birmingham england. they used anyone they could who were listening to my private thoughts to harass and intimidate me under threat of violence. this book tells how i kicked their cowardly asses. if this book is not a true account of what is really happening in birmingham england to this day, then why dont the bbc sue me? cowards!
