

The Sutra Of The Forty-Two Sections

The Sutra of Forty-two Chapters consists of a brief prologue and 42 short chapters (mostly under 100 Chinese characters), composed largely of quotations from the Buddha. Most chapters begin The Buddha said... but several provide the context of a situation or a question asked of the Buddha. The scripture itself is not considered a formal sutra, and early scriptures refer to the work as Forty-two Sections from Buddhist Scriptures or The Forty-two Sections of Emperor Xiao Ming. Because of its association with the entrance of Buddhism to China, it is accorded a very significant status in East Asia.
