

There is more to life: By a 21st Century Heretic

In There is more to life David describes his discovery why the Western Paradigm of materialism did not bring him happiness. However far up the corporate ladder he climbed, however senior he became or how much money he earned, true happiness remained elusive. This is David's personal journey of discovery, the ups, the downs and some really deep downs there have been, in 2012 his despair had him close to suicide. David had a massive heart attack that he was able to repair himself using Deepak Chopra's Quantum Healing; this gave him personal evidence of the power of our unconscious minds. He started having spiritual experiences at the age of five but suppressed them, then in 2000 they started again and over the following 16 years he was shown things the West just doesn't understand. David explains how we become pre-occupied with wealth and asset collection and how we have lost connection with what we really are, that being multi-dimensional beings with capabilities beyond our wildest imaginations. True, deep happiness only comes from connection to what we are, a soul living a human existence for a reason. David describes his life journey and how the hardest knocks, the most difficult times were purely signposts to allow change in direction and change in directions he certainly made. With each shift he became more aware of source consciousness, more aware of the truth behind our intuition, our gut feelings. David followed his intuition and moved to Cusco's Sacred Valley where he finally lost his Western conditioning to work with the medicines for the mind, Ayahuasca and San Pedro. These sacred plants completed a spiritual journey of enlightenment and he describes what they have shown him and how by making some simple changes in our life we can all appreciate life, appreciate that there is so much more to life than we are taught.
